

HOMESCHOOL QUICK REFERENCE

Can I homeschool my child?

- Yes. A parent or legal guardian can teach their child at home without a teaching degree or license. Independent homeschooling gives you broad freedom to choose your child's education. Compulsory school ages are generally 7 to under 16.

Can I choose what to teach?

- You can choose or create your own curriculum. Alaska does not prescribe subjects or require state-approved or accredited materials for independent homeschooling.

Can I choose my schedule?

- You choose the learning days and hours. The state does not set a minimum homeschool calendar.

How do I get started?

- Begin teaching your child at home. You do not need state registration, approval, or annual renewal.
- If your child is currently enrolled elsewhere, let that school know you are withdrawing; this keeps its enrollment record accurate.

Is testing required?

- Your child does not have to take a state-required annual test or evaluation. Portfolios and academic reports are optional on this independent arrangement.

How Faith Schooling Makes It Easier

- Faith Readers supports K–5 reading and phonics; Grammar Garden supports language and writing; Building Number Sense provides K–5 mathematics.
- Choose ready-to-teach Christian reading lessons and math materials when you want structure. HARVEST offers a free reading placement check, and the Homeschool Rhythm Builder helps organize the schedule you choose.

Other choices & helpful details

- Optional district correspondence programs include enrollment and learning-plan conditions. Independent homeschoolers follow the parent-directed requirements above.

Official sources — click the underlined links

Official homeschool guidance

Public correspondence options

Official

Reviewed October 8, 2026 • School year 2026–2027