

HOMESCHOOL QUICK REFERENCE

Can I homeschool my child?

- Yes. You can homeschool without a teaching degree or license. Begin no later than your child's seventh birthday; attendance generally continues until 18 or graduation. Earlier school enrollment can create attendance duties.

Can I choose what to teach?

- Choose your own subjects and curriculum. Teach in English and provide an education comparable to public schooling; you do not have to follow public-school curriculum rules.

How do I get started?

- If enrolled, notify the current principal of withdrawal. State homeschool enrollment reporting is optional; you do not need a homeschool number to begin.

Can I choose my schedule?

- Provide 180 instructional days in the July 1–June 30 school year. You choose the dates and daily lesson length. Previous school attendance counts if you begin midyear.

Is testing required?

- No state-required annual test, portfolio, or academic report. Keep daily attendance and provide it when requested by the appropriate superintendent.

How Faith Schooling Makes It Easier

- Faith Readers supports K–5 reading and phonics; Grammar Garden supports language and writing; Building Number Sense provides K–5 mathematics.
- Structured literacy and math lessons give you a practical starting point. Add a broad range of other subjects. The Homeschool Rhythm Builder helps plan 180 learning days; keep your actual attendance separately.
