

HOMESCHOOL QUICK REFERENCE

Can I homeschool my child?

- Yes. You can teach in an ordinary, noncertified family homeschool without a degree or teaching license. State guidance identifies compulsory attendance generally as ages 6–18. Optional state certification has additional requirements.

Can I choose what to teach?

- Choose your curriculum. Current KDE guidance recommends teaching in English and covering reading, writing, spelling, grammar, history, math, and civics for noncertified homeschools. Provide genuine instruction.

How do I get started?

- Name your homeschool; business registration is not required. Notify your district superintendent every year within the first 2 weeks of the school year, or of withdrawal. Include each child’s name, age, and address.

Can I choose my schedule?

- For noncertified homeschools, current KDE guidance recommends 1,062 hours across at least 170 days; it does not make that a minimum term. Those totals are required for voluntarily certified schools.

Is testing required?

- Keep attendance and reports of courses completed and grades. No state-required standardized test or annual outside evaluation for the ordinary noncertified arrangement.

How Faith Schooling Makes It Easier

- Faith Readers supports K–5 reading and phonics; Grammar Garden supports language and writing; Building Number Sense provides K–5 mathematics.
- Build reading, writing, spelling, grammar, and math learning with these programs. Add history and civics. The Homeschool Rhythm Builder helps you organize learning time; completed work can support your course and grade reports.

Official sources — click the underlined links

Official homeschool guidance

Current certified-school requirements

Official

Reviewed October 8, 2026 • School year 2026–2027