

HOMESCHOOL QUICK REFERENCE

Can I homeschool my child?

- Yes. Parents can teach without a teaching degree or license. The revised independent home-education law gives families wide freedom. It applies to children at least 6 and under 18.

Can I choose what to teach?

- Choose or create your own curriculum. The current independent home-education law has no prescribed subject list or approved-material rule.

Can I choose my schedule?

- You choose your days, hours, and academic term. Your homeschool calendar does not need to match the district's.

How do I get started?

- A declaration is generally optional. Send one when withdrawing from public school or requesting access to public-school programs.
- The declaration is signed by the parent and gives the child's name, birth date, and current address.

Is testing required?

- No mandatory annual standardized test, evaluation, or portfolio under the revised law, effective July 1, 2026. You can choose your own progress checks.

How Faith Schooling Makes It Easier

- Faith Readers supports K–5 reading and phonics; Grammar Garden supports language and writing; Building Number Sense provides K–5 mathematics.
- Use ready-to-teach Christian literacy and math materials for the structure you want. HARVEST provides an optional reading check, and the Homeschool Rhythm Builder helps plan your own week.

Other choices & helpful details

- Optional Education Freedom Accounts have separate subject, annual progress, and spending requirements. This guide describes independent home education.

Official sources — click the underlined links

Official homeschool guidance

Separate Education Freedom Account law

Official

Reviewed October 8, 2026 • School year 2026–2027